

ROSWELL UNITED METHODIST

Roswell, Georgia

These chapel windows at Roswell United Methodist Church have a special history with the church as they survived a major church fire many years ago.

The lexan covering had recently become clouded and brittle, so new covering and vented frames were installed to provide protection and beauty for years to come.

The photo to the left illustrates the newly installed vented framing system. Vented frames allow heat to escape and the windows to “breathe.”

